

Complete 2026 Projections

FFL PPR Scoring

 Player Name

Sortable Projections

Full Projections

Position:

All

QB

RB

WR

TE

FLEX

D/ST

K

Pro Team

All

Scoring Type

Points PPR

Reset All

PLAYER	YEAR	C / A	YDS	TD	INT	CAR	YDS	T
 Sam Darnold Seahawks QB	2025 STATISTICS	323/477	4048	25	14	35	95
	2026 PROJECTIONS	335/512	4012	24	12	44	126
	2026 OUTLOOK: Darnold's first season with the Super Bowl champion Seahawks couldn't have gone much better from a real-life standpoint, but didn't translate to much fantasy success. Despite finishing fifth in the NFL in passing yards for the second season in a row, Darnold finished 27th in fantasy points per game. He was very boom or bust, delivering seven top-10 weeks but also nine finishes outside the top 10. Turnovers (15 INTs were second most in the NFL) and a lack of rushing were the culprits. The 29-year-old will have a new play caller in Fleury, but otherwise it's roughly the status quo offensively. Darnold is no more than a fringe QB2 with a limited ceiling.
PLAYER	YEAR	TAR	REC	YDS	AVG	TD	CAR	YDS	T
 Jauan Jennings Vikings WR	2025 STATISTICS	90	55	643	11.7	9	0	0
	2026 PROJECTIONS	72	47	485	10.4	3	0	0
	2026 OUTLOOK: Jennings signed with the Vikings in May. The 2020 seventh-round pick was a situational player during his first three pro camp appearances in San Francisco prior to breaking out with a 77-975-6 receiving line and 27th-place finish in fantasy PPG in 2024. He dipped quite a bit in 2025 and failed to produce a single top-10 fantasy week, but did score nine touchdowns (sixth among WRs) in a good nine games. The 29-year-old will now file in third on the Minnesota depth chart behind Justin Jefferson and Jordan Addison. He's headed for a role as a target and, especially with Kyler Murray under center, won't be a consistent fantasy option. He's barely worth late-round consideration.
PLAYER	YEAR	TAR	REC	YDS	AVG	TD	CAR	YDS	T
 Malachi Fields Giants WR	2025 STATISTICS	--	--	--	--	--	--	--
	2026 PROJECTIONS	50	32	405	12.5	2	0	0
	2026 OUTLOOK: Fields was selected by the Giants in the third round of April's draft. One of the biggest and strongest receivers in this rookie class, Fields figures to work as a perimeter, vertical target in the pros (career 13.3 aDOT during 49 collegiate games). Fields, who dropped 100 pounds in college, handled a target share of, at least, 20% and air yard share of, at least, 30% during each of his final three college seasons (two at Virginia, one at Notre Dame). Fields will battle Darnell Mooney and Darius Slayton for New York's No. 2 receiver gig behind Odell Beckham Jr. The rookie is a fine late-round flier.
PLAYER	YEAR	TAR	REC	YDS	AVG	TD	CAR	YDS	T
 Germie Bernard Steelers WR	2025 STATISTICS	--	--	--	--	--	--	--
	2026 PROJECTIONS	68	40	504	12.5	3	2	12
	2026 OUTLOOK: Bernard was selected by the Steelers in the second round of April's draft. Bernard is a solid, reliable receiver with good size who can line up over the formation (55% slot in 53 collegiate games). Despite playing at three schools in four years, Bernard's production increased in his final season, including a strong 64-862-7 receiving line (plus 18-101-2 rushing) in 2025. He dropped only four of 240 career targets. He's likely to open his career third or fourth in line at receiver behind Michael Pittman Jr., DK Metcalf and perhaps Roman Wilson. It's a tough path to consistent rookie-season usage and production, so he's only worth draft consideration in the later rounds.
PLAYER	YEAR	TAR	REC	YDS	AVG	TD	CAR	YDS	T
 Tre' Harris Chargers WR Questionable	2025 STATISTICS	43	30	324	10.8	1	2	10
	2026 PROJECTIONS	53	35	410	11.9	2	0	0
	2026 OUTLOOK: Harris is a Year 2 breakout candidate after flashing in a limited role as a rookie. The 2025 second-round pick quietly played 49 games on the Chargers' offensive snaps, but he spent a lot of that blocking and was limited to an 8% target share. Harris is likely to open the season behind Ladd McConkey and Quentin Johnston, but with Keenan Allen gone, his competition for No. 3 duties is 2025 fifth-round pick Lambert-Smith and rookie Brennen Thompson. A potential starter in new playcaller Mike McDaniel's offense, the 24-year-old Harris is intriguing late-round sleeper.
PLAYER	YEAR	TAR	REC	YDS	AVG	TD	CAR	YDS	T
 Pat Freiermuth Steelers TE	2025 STATISTICS	54	41	486	11.9	4	0	0
	2026 PROJECTIONS	85	60	603	10.1	3	0	0
	2026 OUTLOOK:

Returning for his third year with the Chargers, Vidal is set to compete with newcomer Keaton Mitchell for change-of-pace tou Omarion Hampton. Vidal had some big moments in 2025, clearing 17 fantasy points in four games, but the notable disclaime Hampton was sidelined for all of those outings. In fact, Vidal scored only 4.1 fantasy PPG in his other nine games. The 2024 sib is a fine depth player who showed he can handle big workloads when needed, but he'll be worth rostering only should Hamp and, even then, Mitchell figures to play a role.

PLAYER	YEAR	CAR	YDS	AVG	TD	REC	YDS	T
 Jaylen Wright Dolphins RB	2025 STATISTICS	70	288	4.1	2	5	44
	2026 PROJECTIONS	60	252	4.2	1	7	56
	2026 OUTLOOK: Wright will once again compete with second-year Ollie Gordon II for backup reps behind feature back De'Von Achane. Wright cleared 70 touches during each of his first two NFL seasons, but he has shined at times, including a 24-107-1 rushing line in Week 17 of last season. The 2024 fourth-round pick has been effective as a rusher, but hasn't been involved in the passing game (15 targets in Week 17). The 23-year-old would be worth adding only in the event of an Achane injury and even then, it's possible he would split (or be the end of a committee) with Gordon in a rebuilding offense that may not score very often.
PLAYER	YEAR	TAR	REC	YDS	AVG	TD	CAR	YDS	T
 Gunnar Helm Titans TE	2025 STATISTICS	55	44	357	8.1	2	0	0
	2026 PROJECTIONS	77	58	499	8.6	3	0	0
	2026 OUTLOOK: Helm quietly caught 44 passes during his rookie season, which -- believe it or not -- ranks 11th among rookie tight ends over the past decade. Impressively, the 2025 fourth-round pick hit that mark despite playing second fiddle to starter Chig Okonkwo. Helm, healthy 79% of his 56 targets, wasn't much of a fantasy option as a rookie (5.7 PPG), but with Okonkwo out of the picture, he's expected to play a much larger role in his second season. Helm will need a leap from QB Cam Ward, but if that happens, a breakout season is possible. The 24-year-old is worth a late flier in deeper leagues.
PLAYER	YEAR	TAR	REC	YDS	AVG	TD	CAR	YDS	T
 Chig Okonkwo Commanders TE	2025 STATISTICS	79	56	560	10.0	2	0	0
	2026 PROJECTIONS	72	51	560	10.9	2	0	0
	2026 OUTLOOK: Okonkwo signed with the Commanders after spending his first four seasons in Tennessee. The 2022 fourth-round pick is one of the few tight ends who have appeared in all 68 games since he entered the league, and he's also one of only six tight ends who have caught 50 or more passes each of the past three seasons. On the other hand, Okonkwo has yet to clear a 16% target share in a single season. He has been a nonfactor near the goal line (eight TDs and 11 end zone targets in his career). As a result, he has finished exactly 2 points each of the past three seasons. Perhaps he'll make a leap as one of Jayden Daniels' top targets, but the 27-year-old is more of a back-end TE2 lottery ticket.
PLAYER	YEAR	TAR	REC	YDS	AVG	TD	CAR	YDS	T
 AJ Barner Seahawks TE	2025 STATISTICS	68	52	519	10.0	6	10	14
	2026 PROJECTIONS	60	45	433	9.7	4	9	18
	2026 OUTLOOK: Barner was a solid contributor for the Seattle offense last season. The 2024 fourth-round pick worked his way to the top of the tight end depth chart, and although his overall volume was limited (20th among TEs in targets and yards), he found the end zone seven times and finished with 21 fantasy points (21st in PPG). The 24-year-old is a serviceable, short-range target for Sam Darnold, but even with some rushing role in Seattle's low-volume passing offense won't allow much upside. In fact, it's possible he loses some targets to second-year Jaxon Arroyo this season. Barner is a fringe TE2, at best.
PLAYER	YEAR	C / A	YDS	TD	INT	CAR	YDS	T
 Bryce Young Panthers QB	2025 STATISTICS	304/478	3011	23	11	54	216
	2026 PROJECTIONS	334/537	3636	20	12	58	273
	2026 OUTLOOK: Young has yet to find his way to any sort of fantasy relevance during his first three NFL seasons. The 2023 No. 1 draft pick has been season better than 20th in passing yards, 10th in rushing yards or 24th in fantasy points per game. Efficiency has been a problem, as his season's career-high 6.3 yards per attempt was barely up from 2024 and still among the worst in the NFL. Young's 47.6 QBR ranked 22nd among 28 qualified quarterbacks. Perhaps the 25-year-old will make a leap in top target Tetairoa McMillan's second season. Brad Idzik's debut as the offensive playcaller, but it will be asking a lot to expect QB1 production. Young is best viewed as a fringe team leagues.
PLAYER	YEAR	C / A	YDS	TD	INT	CAR	YDS	T
 Cam Ward Titans QB	2025 STATISTICS	323/540	3169	15	7	39	159
	2026 PROJECTIONS	355/558	3758	17	10	47	201
	2026 OUTLOOK: Ward is eyeing a Year 2 leap following an underwhelming rookie campaign, albeit under tough circumstances. The 2025 No. 1 pick was plenty busy as a rookie (eighth in the league in dropbacks and pass attempts), but he struggled to 5.9 yards per attempt and was sacked a high 55 sacks. Ward was rarely a factor with his legs (more than 12 yards three times) and produced one weekly fantasy finish in Week 12th. The good news is that a tough rookie year isn't overly damning for a quarterback's career trajectory, and he'll be in a better position in 2026 with new playcaller Brian Daboll and an improved supporting cast (Carnell Tate and Wan'Dale Robinson join a now-healthy Ridley). Ward will need to run more to become an elite fantasy option, but Year 2 is the breakout season for many quarterbacks worth a late flier.
PLAYER	YEAR	C / A	YDS	TD	INT	CAR	YDS	T
 Jacoby Brissett Cardinals QB	2025 STATISTICS	315/485	3366	23	8	38	168
	2026 PROJECTIONS	327/517	3352	15	9	47	210
	2026 OUTLOOK:								